Non-Jurisdictional Briefs

Selected complaints not docketed by the City of York Human Relations Commission referred to Pa Human Relations Commission or other appropriate agency.
(Only contains the allegations of the person who called)

September

Case 1:

Complainant contacted the office because he believes he was discriminated against for his race-African American. Specifically, the Complainant alleged being called derogatory names by Supervisor. He reported the treatment to HR but they failed to investigate. In turn, HR wrote up the Complainant for false allegations, which Complainant denies. The Complainant has been denied promotions, and denied a reasonable accommodation request. Referred to PHRC for lack of jurisdiction. Business is located outside of city limits.

Case 2:

Complainant contacted the office because he believes he was discriminated against for his race-African American. Specifically, the Complainant was terminated from employment after reporting ongoing harassment. The Complainant was terminated for “negligence” for an incident the Complainant claims was not his fault. Referred to PHRC for lack of jurisdiction. Business is located outside of city limits.

Case 3:

Complainant contacted the office because she believes she was discriminated against for her race-African American. Specifically, the Complainant was experiencing workplace harassment by a Supervisor. The harassment is ongoing in nature. Referred to PHRC for lack of jurisdiction. Business is located outside of city limits.
